ABOUT ME

I am a graduate of SENA in the area of software analysis and development. During my training I have acquired a solid knowledge base on programming and application development, I am familiar with programming languages such as Java, C++, Python and JavaScript, as well as popular frameworks and tools such as React, Angular and Node.js.

I have worked on projects that involve creating intuitive and attractive interfaces, as well as implementing advanced functionalities, such as integration with cloud services.

I am a creative person and passionate about technology, I am constantly updating myself and learning new skills to stay up to date with the latest trends in software development. My goal is to continue growing professionally and become a highly competent and successful software developer.
